“Consulting Engineer” Designation: Notes Regarding Experience

(Approved by Council in July 1987)

Section 56(1)(c) [formerly section 70(1)(c)] of the regulations governing designation as a consulting engineer requires a minimum of five years of post-registration experience. (This experience must be at least of equal quality to the experience required for initial licensing.) The purpose of this requirement is to ensure that in addition to technical experience, the applicant has acquired satisfactory exposure to the business aspects of consulting necessary for the effective planning and implementation of engineering work. The applicant’s experience during this time should indicate the development of such characteristics as business judgment, communications ability, acceptance of responsibility and self-confidence. In this regard, at least two years of an applicant’s technical and business experience should ideally be at a level equivalent to level “D” in [then] APEO’s salary survey publications. [Salary surveys are now conducted by the Ontario Society of Professional Engineers.]

The two years of experience in independent practice required under section 56(1)(b) [formerly section 70(1)(b)] may be considered as part of the overall five years of experience required by section 56(1)(c) [formerly section 70(1)(c)].

Most commonly, the two years of experience in independent practice will be gained from full time employment in the consulting industry. It should be noted, however, that there will be exceptions. For instance, experience in research and development organizations may also be considered, provided the application of engineering principles is involved and provided suitable “business exposure”, as noted above, has been obtained.

Experience gained in a post-secondary academic institution will be acceptable in satisfying the requirements of section 56(1)(c) [formerly section 70(1)(c)], provided it relates to the teaching of engineering principles and provided it is supported by two years of experience as required by section 56(1)(b) [formerly section 70(1)(b)].

For applicants with many years of suitable engineering and business experience at senior levels in industry and who have made a career change into the consulting business, it may be recommended that Council waive the two-year experience requirement noted in section 56(1)(b) [formerly 70(1)(b)].

The term “engaged primarily” as noted in section 60(a) [formerly section 74(a)] means that at least 50 per cent of the applicant’s annual income is derived from the independent practice of professional engineering.
